The Story Behind the Stories

SAINT BY SARAH JANE

*S*aint by Sarah Jane bears more than just the name of its designer and founder. It conveys her spirit, too. Of optimism. Hope. Encouragement. And people respond. At trunk shows women gather, slipping on the jewelry, listening to Sarah Jane tell the story each piece embodies. And they share, too. They tell about the Saint pieces they've collected and what they mean to them. The stories tumble out. How they never take an important meeting without wearing their Bee earrings. How a daughter still delights in the gift of a Butterfly necklace. How nothing makes them feel quite like Saint does.

FINDING HER MUSE

When Sarah Jane began designing jewelry, she sought inspiration. "I saw a lot of beautiful work, but nothing connected with me," Sarah Jane says. "I was looking for meaning." She found it in the world around her. Time spent studying in Paris as a young woman ignited her creativity and taught her to see the beauty in everyday details – from the patterns of bricks laid in a pathway to the symmetry of trees lining a boulevard. "Paris is where I really learned to use my eyes."

Sarah Jane's Blossoms line, launched in 1997, symbolizes newfound friendships, laughter and growth. In its creation, Sarah Jane tried to capture the emotions she felt while sketching on a sunny Tuileries Gardens park bench. "I made so many memories with my friends there – watching children playing, lovers meeting and hurried Parisians taking shortcuts through the garden." The spirit of the centuries-old park with its reflecting pools and acres of formal gardens can be felt in Blossoms' classical patterns and intertwined flora.

Her signature Bee collection followed, with others in rapid succession. Nature continues to be her muse. Daily walks in the Sonoran Desert near her adopted home of Scottsdale, Ariz., feed her soul.

“I find life and spirit in hiking,” she says, “and in giving myself time for reflection and listening to my inner voice.”

AN EYE FOR DESIGN

That voice has always been there, urging her to create. As a young girl in Kansas, Sarah Jane was fascinated by color and design. She obsessed over fashion magazines, ripping out images and organizing them for future reference. Her closet was her “fashion temple” with posters she created from spreads out of W or Vogue. Even having to wear a school uniform didn’t daunt her. “I saw it as an opportunity to accessorize,” she says with a laugh. It was a skill even her mother tapped into, often calling Sarah Jane into her room to help put together an outfit. “We’d have so much fun,” Sarah Jane says, “and it made me feel really special.”

Everything Sarah Jane designs stems from her personal experience – even the signature woven patterns that tie most of her pieces together. Inspiration for the Julep pattern came from the oversized, woven-cane rocking chairs used by her very Southern grandmother and grandfather. “They’d rock and sip their mint julep teas out on the porch, while my cousin and I would drink soda pop, giggle and try to catch lightning bugs. I try to weave those tender memories into my jewelry.”

STUDENT TO MASTER

Sarah Jane honed her designer’s eye at Woodbury University in Los Angeles and the Paris Fashion Institute. She spent four years in New York City working with luxury designer Barry Kieselstein-Cord. She then moved to the great Southwest, where she launched Saint by Sarah Jane. Loyal to her native roots, she found artisans back in the Midwest who painstakingly forge her designs from precious metals, stones and gems. Collectors can find Saint nationwide in such leading retailers as Neiman Marcus and Saks Fifth Avenue. Her collections’ artistry and craftsmanship give them an immediate heirloom quality. Their classic yet contemporary designs easily move from day to evening.

Today, Sarah Jane continues to develop new collections – and passionate collectors – as she attends trunk shows and industry events nationwide. Business is good. More importantly, her jewelry is having the desired effect.

“I set out to create pieces of jewelry that were almost like small embraces,” she says. “It’s very rewarding for me to see that they really do function that way. The pieces seem to bring comfort to the wearer, almost as if they have some sort of human touch. Saint has soul.”

ngage life. Slip on some Saint. Each season, the house of Saint generates new keepsakes, providing the growing number of Saint collectors with prized additions. Each new collection carries its own unique name and special meaning.

To fully understand Saint jewelry, you must put it on. The moment it touches your skin, you sense the quality of the solid 18-karat gold and Sterling silver. You feel enriched by the meticulously cut gemstones: regal London blue topaz, luscious lemon-colored citrines, mystic Tahitian pearls and more. You marvel at the attention to detail — from toggle closures carved in the form of honey spoons to hand-carved grillwork with special messages — that other designers overlook or disregard. Intuitively, you understand the yin and yang of Saint designs. The substantial quality and craftsmanship of the materials complement the whimsical concepts.

All designs are carved by hand, using the lost-wax process. Each subsequent step of the manufacturing process is completed by hand. Even the gemstones are handset in Saint's studio. Naturally, to protect your investment, all design motifs have a registered copyright.

FEEL PROTECTED

Each of us needs an angel. Especially during hard times. When life's storms move in, threatening security and peace of mind, Sarah Jane slips on her Angel necklace. It serves as a tangible reminder that she's not alone. That she is loved and protected. That her footsteps are guided by something bigger than herself. It makes all the difference.

*B*EE
(BUZZ)

OVERCOME OBSTACLES

Don't tell a bee that its small-sized wings make it aerodynamically incapable of flying. That would only slow it down. It has a hive to build, honey to make and a queen bee to tend. Put on a piece from Saint's signature bee collection and something happens. You feel like you can do anything. You believe. In yourself.

PURSUE A YOUNG HEART

Watch the butterflies in your garden.
The graceful movement of their vibrantly colored, gossamer wings reminds us of life's beautiful rhythms. These butterflies will move on, crossing continents, guided by an unseen force. Yet they leave our hearts glad. For we know they will return, gracing our lives again.

PERSEVERE WITH FAITH

The Casa Cross evokes the simple adobe churches and bedrock faith of those who make their home in the Arizona desert. This union of earth and expectation, land and sky, reminds us of the source of true beauty, love and happiness. They reside not in things, but in a belief that is as vast and eternal as the human spirit.

FROG

CELEBRATE LOVE

You remember the story of the Frog Prince. Sarah Jane had her princelike moment the day she opened her door and found a big frog sitting there like he was about to knock. I took it as a sign, Sarah Jane says, and sure enough, six months later I met my husband. Perhaps your soul mate is about to arrive at your doorstep, too, like Sarah Jane's Otis, who has a heart full of love ready to share. You just need to be open and ready to receive it.

FOLLOW YOUR HEART

Thoroughbreds thunder around a track. These noble steeds are born to run. With hearts twice the size of an average horse's. Strides that are longer and faster than your eye can take in. Yet it's the will to win that gives a racehorse the edge. Sarah Jane created this line to honor her husband, best friend and ultra-long-distance runner, Art. A true champion.

OWL
(EYEBALLS)

RESPECT WISDOM

The owl owns the night, navigating the darkest forest. Once it alights in a tree, it seems to see everything, know everything. Its large, flat face turns slowly. Its eyes look directly and unblinkingly at the source of a sound. Countless legends and folklore touch on the owl's quiet wisdom, but an old nursery rhyme says it best:

A wise old owl lived in an oak.

The more he saw the less he spoke.

The less he spoke, the more he heard.

Why can't we all be like that wise old bird?

TREASURE LOYALTY

Celebrate an important relationship with this noble emblem of abiding loyalty and love. Perhaps it's the friend who stood by you when everyone else turned away. The mother who did without so you didn't have to. Cherish the person who would never betray your trust by word or deed. Saint by Sarah Jane puts the heart where it deserves to be. As the crowning glory.

TURTLE

SLOW DOWN

Traditions worldwide honor the turtle, a symbol of feminine power. Its shell protects like Mother Earth while its slow, steady pace exemplifies patience and navigating challenges. Sarah Jane's grandpa used to say, "You only have so many heartbeats." That encouragement to slow down and enjoy life's journey inspired Sarah Jane to create Sheldon.

Women really respond to the meaning behind the collection," says Sarah Jane.

Wearing the pieces is empowering. It's like giving themselves permission to relax.
